Duke's 10 schools are engaged in a range of international teaching, research and service activities, including:

- the Divinity School's East Africa Great Lakes Initiative and Northeast Asia Initiative
- the Global Executive MBA and Cross Continent MBA programs at the Fuqua School of Business
- Duke Law School's Summer Institutes in Transnational Law in Geneva and Hong Kong
- the School of Medicine's longstanding global health site in Moshi, Tanzania
- the Nicholas School of the Environment's courses in Panama, Puerto Rico, Singapore and other countries
- the School of Nursing's collaborations in China, including the annual US-Sino Nursing Forum
- the Pratt School of Engineering's support to Effat College, the only engineering school for women in Saudi Arabia
- the Sanford School of Public Policy's Media Fellows program, which brings journalists from around the world to Duke
- the Trinity College of Arts and Sciences Center on Globalization, Governance & Competitiveness

The Duke-NUS Graduate Medical School in Singapore offers a four-year Doctor of Medicine degree, and a joint MD/PhD degree.

Duke faculty members are active in 144 countries around the globe. Duke is home to 1,816 international faculty members and researchers, hailing from 98 countries.

The Provost's Office sponsors three initiatives—the Africa Initiative, the Brazil Initiative and the Tropical Conservation Initiative—designed to build deeper connections among scholars at Duke and around the world.

The Office of Global Strategy and Programs was established in 2010 as the locus of planning and coordination for Duke’s global activities and initiatives.

“The promise of a great and confident university rests on the knowledge that if we don’t risk, we fail. Duke has never been afraid to lead ... and will expand its leadership role and, more vitally, the opportunities and responsibilities of its own global citizenship in an unbounded world.”

A Global Vision for Duke University
Duke Global Priorities Committee
September 2013
A collaboration between Duke and the National University of Singapore, the Duke-NUS Graduate Medical School offers a four-year Doctor of Medicine degree and a joint MD/PhD degree.

Duke-National University of Singapore Graduate Medical School

Duke University’s Durham campus is home to students, faculty, and staff from all over the world.

Duke University

Duke Kunshan University (DKU)

A joint venture university opened in 2014, DKU blends liberal education with Chinese tradition in a new approach to elite higher education in China.

Duke Kunshan University